Gawley Plastic Surgery Center First to Offer ThermiVa Procedure in Scottsdale

Phoenix, AZ April 2015 – Gawley Plastic Surgery Center is announcing its new release of the non-surgical vaginal rejuvenation treatment ThermiVa in Phoenix and Scottsdale. The center offers patients many cosmetic procedures accommodating different desires, and now offers patients this innovative non-surgical aesthetic option.

Why ThermiVA

Relaxation of vaginal muscles are very common after vaginal birth and due to natural aging. This can change the relationship between partners due to reduced sexual satisfaction and a decrease in sensation during intercourse. ThermiVa helps tighten the external labia or internal vagina with many patients seeing results after their first treatment.

Dr. Cheri Ong will be performing the ThermiVa procedures for patients at Gawley Plastic Surgery. As the first practice in Scottsdale to offer the procedure, area women can now opt for the new ThermiVa non-surgical procedure treating laxity or urinary incontinence. Gawley Plastic Surgery is expecting to have the treatment available in May.

"I think people are going to be very pleasantly surprised about what this treatment is capable of." Dr. Ong said. "It has completely changed the lives of many women in a positive way, and any woman can benefit from it in some way or another."

How ThermiVa Works

ThermiVa treatments use controlled thermal energy waves to treat the interior and external vagina which causes the tissue to become firmer and tighter. It utilizes the same technology as ThermiTight and ThermiSmooth which have been around for years and have gained immense popularity with its ability to reduce the signs of aging by tightening skin. The ThermiVa procedure is completed over three months requiring three separate treatments. There are no anesthetics required during the treatment and no downtime besides the office visit. During clinical studies, physicians reported patients are comfortable, relaxed and pleased with the noticeable results!
